A Faith Academy Parent Partnership Presentation

When we talk about The Life we are talking about a Person-Jesus Christ, God Himself-offering to exchange who we are apart from Him for a new identity as His sons and daughters, infused with His life, made partakers of His nature, tracing our heritage to Him, and blessed with His indwelling presence. The Apostle Paul reminds us that spiritual truth is not an intellectual acquisition, but rather something that must be apprehended by the power of the Holy Spirit.

FRIENDSHIP

Friendships have a fascinating impact on our lives, some positive, and some negative. As our kids head back to school and re-establish their friendships, it is critical that we, as parents, guide them to make wise choices when choosing friends. Listed below are a few reasons friendships are essential in your child's life. Help your child understand the importance of choosing well when it comes to friends. Wisdom is an essential component when choosing friends.

1. Friendships Build Beliefs

How have your friendships impacted you? Friendships can have a profound influence on what we believe about ourselves and the world around us. The Bible tells us in Proverbs 22:24-25, "Make no friendship with a man given to anger, nor go with a wrathful man, lest you learn his ways and entangle yourself in a snare." Friends can fuel internal and external action, but it's important to understand in which direction (Proverbs 4:23).

2. Friendships Lead Us Toward Growth

Friendship can lead us toward growth, connection, and personal improvement. On the other side of that coin, however, it can lead us toward personal destruction, emotional pain, and distractions if we are not careful with whom we choose to be friends. Ask, "Do you feel like you belong or that you have to find ways to fit in with your friends?" "Do you feel worthwhile when you're with your friends, or do you have to find ways to make yourself feel worthwhile around your friends?" "Do your friends build you up or encourage you, or do they constantly put you down?"

3. Friendships Give the Opportunity to Help Build Contributor Skills Rather Than Consumer Skills

Every relationship has some give and take. One of the reasons why friendship is important is that, as friends, our kids can contribute to the growth and encouragement of their friends. 1 Thessalonians 5:11 instructs us, "Therefore encourage one another and build one another up, just as you are doing." Teaching kids how to be contributors in their friendships—helping each other in times of need, encouraging each other, and praying for each other—can help them form solid foundations for friendships and relationships later in life. Teach them to become aware of how their friends influence them and how they influence friends around them. For older kids, help them set a vision to become contributors to other people's lives rather than consumers. They have the power to be an amazingly positive influence on others, or they can negatively influence them. With younger kids, provide examples and opportunities to be contributors rather than consumers in the home and during playtime with other kids.

4. Friendships Can Encourage Our Walk with Christ

Have you ever had a good friend who was closer than a brother to you and challenged you to have a deeper relationship with Christ? Children, especially, tend to become like the people with who they spend time. If our kids are spending time with friends who are believers in the Lord, they will likely begin to grow in maturity in their relationship with Christ. However, if their friends are not followers of Christ, they may influence our children into wrongdoing and wrong thinking. As parents, we need to encourage our children to forge strong friendships with fellow believers in Christ. Be sure to ask your kids "Are your friendships building your relationship with Christ? Or are they tearing you away?"

Praying for you as you lead your children in the way of Christ!
